THE BRITISH HOME SERIES

Your Ebook Title Goes Here

One clear, benefit-driven sentence. What will the reader be able to do after reading this? Be specific with a number, timeframe, or quantified outcome.

The Hormozi Ebook Framework

Every chapter in this template follows Alex Hormozi's Value Equation: maximise the Dream Outcome, increase Perceived Likelihood of Achievement, reduce Time to Result, and eliminate Perceived Effort. Applied to each chapter, this creates content readers cannot stop reading — and cannot stop recommending.

① Hook

DREAM OUTCOME FIRST

Open with the specific, quantified result the reader gets from this chapter. Name the number, the timeframe, the transformation. Make it feel real and achievable.

② Problem

NAME THE PAIN PRECISELY

State the specific frustration. Use "Most people..." to create recognition. The reader should think "that's me." Specificity beats generality every time.

③ Mechanism

THE HOW — YOUR CORE VALUE

The actual solution: step-by-step, principle-by-principle. Specific prices, named brands, exact measurements. Vague advice is cheap. Specific guidance is rare.

④ Proof

REAL EXAMPLE WITH NUMBERS

A before/after story from your own experience. One specific story with details beats ten vague testimonials. Numbers make it 10× more believable.

⑤ Quick Wins

REDUCE PERCEIVED EFFORT

3–5 things they can do immediately. Low effort, high impact. The reader should be able to start today. This is what makes them feel the guide is already paying off.

⑥ Takeaway

BRIDGE TO THE NEXT CHAPTER

One sentence summary of this chapter's core idea. Then a single sentence bridging to why the next chapter matters. Creates forward momentum and reduces drop-off.

"The product doesn't sell itself. It's the transformation — the before and after — that sells. Name the after first, always."

— Alex Hormozi, $100M Offers

CHAPTER 1 OF 12

Chapter One Title

After this chapter, your reader will be able to [do specific thing] in [timeframe] for under [amount]. Write the transformation in one sentence.

DREAM OUTCOME

① HOOK — DREAM OUTCOME FIRST

What You Will Have After This Chapter

Write 3–5 sentences that open with the specific, desirable result the reader gets from this chapter. Lead with the transformation, not the topic. Example: "By the end of this chapter, you'll know exactly how to do X in under Y hours for under $Z — without needing to Z1 or Z2." Make the reader feel the outcome before you teach it.

② PROBLEM — NAME THE PAIN PRECISELY

The Real Problem Most People Are Ignoring

Write 3–5 sentences naming the specific frustration. Use "Most people who [audience descriptor] struggle with [specific pain]." Be precise — the more specific the pain, the more the reader feels seen. End with: "Here's what actually works."

KEY STAT OR PROOF POINT

Add a supporting statistic, study, or fact here that validates the problem. E.g. "According to [credible source], X% of [audience] experience [problem]." Specificity = credibility.

③ MECHANISM — THE HOWThe Step-by-Step Framework

This is your core content — the actual value. Write it as numbered steps, a named framework, or a principle-by-principle guide. Be specific: exact prices, named brands, real measurements. Vague advice is cheap; specific guidance is what gets shared and recommended.

④ PROOF — REAL EXAMPLE WITH NUMBERSWhat This Looks Like in the Real World

Tell one specific story from your own experience or a reader's. Use the Before → After structure. Include real numbers: cost, time, specific result. One detailed story with numbers beats ten vague testimonials. "In my [specific apartment/home/situation], I did X. Cost: $Y. Time: Z hours. Result: [specific outcome]."

⑤ QUICK WINS — REDUCE PERCEIVED EFFORTThree Things You Can Do Today

List 3–5 immediate actions the reader can take right now, today, with what they already have. Low effort, visible impact. This section makes readers feel the guide is already paying for itself before they finish the chapter.

- ☐ Quick win #1 — one sentence, achievable in under 30 minutes
 - ☐ Quick win #2 — one sentence, achievable in under 30 minutes
 - ☐ Quick win #3 — one sentence, achievable in under 30 minutes

⑥ TAKEAWAY — BRIDGE FORWARDThe One Thing to Remember

Write one sentence that distills the entire chapter into its core principle. Then one sentence bridging to the next chapter: "Now that you know [this chapter's principle], the next step is [next chapter's topic] — because [reason they're connected]."

CHAPTER 2 OF 12

Chapter Two Title

After this chapter, the reader will be able to [specific transformation]. Quantify it.

CHAPTER 12 OF 12

Chapter Twelve: Your Next Step

After this final chapter, your reader holds a complete, actionable plan. The guide is done. The result is within reach. Now they need to act.

What You Now Know

[Summarise the entire guide's journey in 3–5 sentences. Name each chapter's core principle. Show them how far they've come from chapter 1 to now. Make them feel the weight of what they've learned.]

② THE PRIORITY ORDER

Where to Start — The Exact Sequence

[Give the definitive action plan: what to do first, second, and third. The reader has 12 chapters of information — distil it to a single priority order. This is one of the highest-value pages in the entire guide.]

- ☐ Step 1: [The single most important action — do this first]
- ☐ Step 2: [Second priority — after Step 1 is done]
- ☐ Step 3: [Third priority]
- ☐ Step 4: [Continue the sequence...]
- ☐ Step 5: [Final anchor action]

③ THE CLOSE — HORMOZI MOMENT

The One Thing That Changes Everything

[End with conviction. Tell them the single most important principle from the entire guide — the one idea they should take away above all others. Make it memorable, specific, and true. This is what they'll share with others.]

YOUR CALL TO ACTION

Direct the reader to the next step: visit your website, follow your newsletter, buy the next guide, leave a review, or share with someone who needs this. Make it one clear action, not three. The final CTA is a gift — don't waste it on multiple options.
